

Bioinformatics and Research Technician positions at the Next-generation sequencing Facility at The Burnham Institute for Medical Research at Lake Nona Orlando FL

The Burnham Institute for Medical Research at Lake Nona Florida is currently seeking full time Bioinformatics expert and Research Technician for the upcoming analytical Genomics Core Facility. These individuals will provide support to our next generation Sequencing Facility within the Genomic Core. Research technicians must have good knowledge of the principles and theories of molecular biology and must possess excellent analytical, organization, communication, and computer skills. Previous experience in next generation sequencing is an asset. Experience in DNA/RNA and molecular cloning is a must. Candidates must have the ability to work independently and as part of a team, and responsible and possess good interpersonal skills. BS or MS degree is required. We offer competitive salary and excellent benefits.